Wall of 30,000 Sandbags Erected Overnight on Top of Levee Enables Fulton to Repulse Record 36.5-Foot Red River Flood

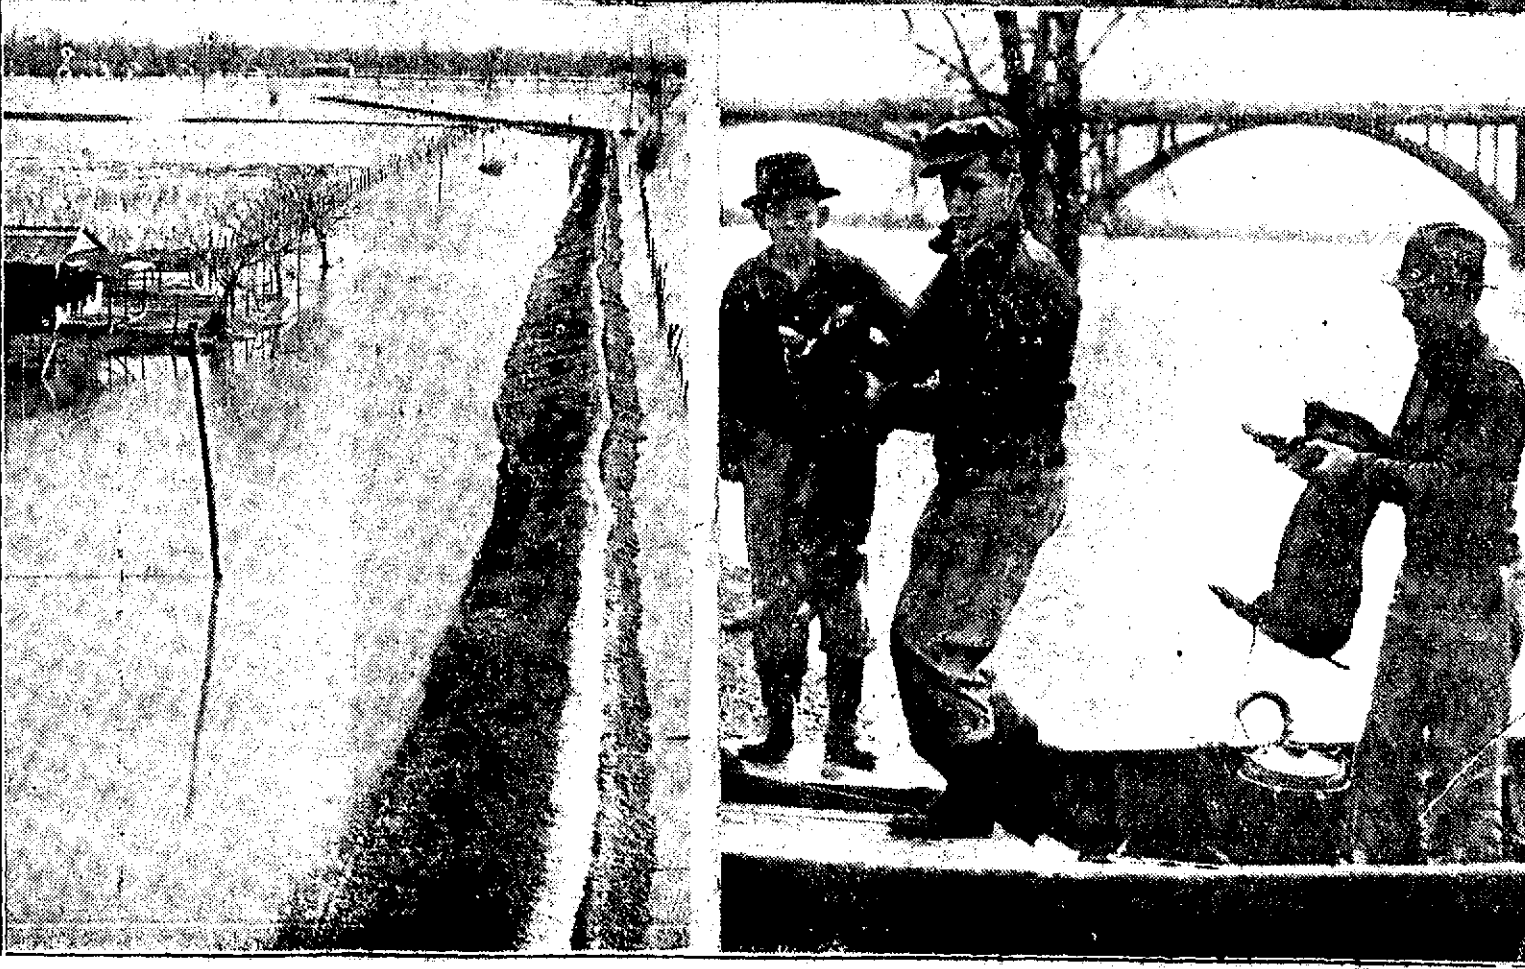

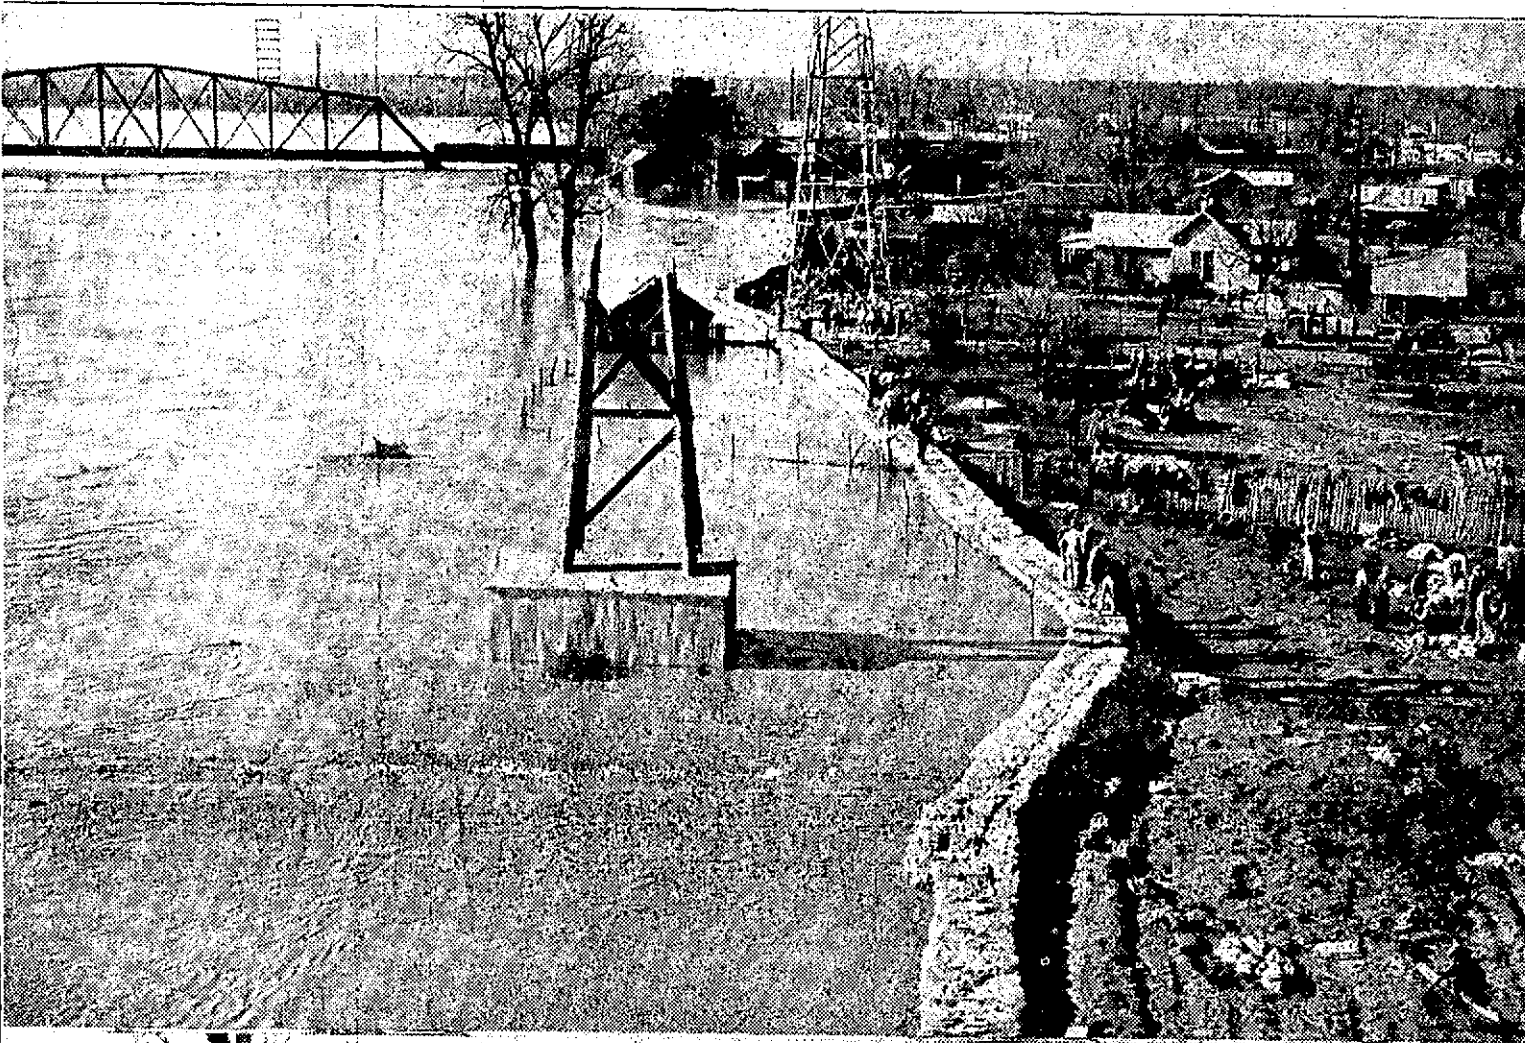

TOP—Shot at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, this picture shows the emergency sandbag wall atop Fulton levee defending the Red river town at the moment when the water touched 36.5 feet, breaking the 1927 modern record of 35.6 feet. Photo looks north from the highway bridge.

MIDDLE—This picture, made the preceding afternoon, Tuesday, shows WPA workers building an emergency earth wall on top of the main Fulton levee. Tuesday night and Wednesday the sandbag wall was placed on top of this dirt.

BOTTOM LEFT—Looking south from the highway bridge Wednesday the camera's eye runs down to the break in the Hempstead county levee. The river is to the right, and to the left appears the backwater that came in on Hempstead soil when the main levee broke south of Fulton. Buildings well down in water on the horizon are the flooded home of R. R. Cornelius, plantation owner.

CREST IS NEARING

Red Cross Office at Fulton Set Up—250 Families Given Relief

On the face of latest reports it appeared Thursday that emergency crews had won their fight against the swollen Red river at Fulton.

A temporary zig-zag levee of 30,000 sandbags continued to protect the town. The lower places were being heightened with additional sandbags.

After reaching an all-time peak of 36.5 feet at midnight Wednesday the stream dropped to 36.4 at 7 a. m. and was at that level at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

It was reported from Fulton that the river fell seven-tenths of a foot at Index, above Fulton, during the night, indicating that the crest was about reached at Fulton.

The town was crowded Thursday as hundreds of sight-seers, newspaper men and photographers flocked into Fulton. Two short-wave radio stations were set up at the Cox Service Station and reports of the flood were being broadcast.

A Red Cross observation plane from Little Rock was flying over the flooded area in an effort to locate possibly marooned families that might be in distress.

All levees protecting the town of Fulton were being kept under close guard. Water from breaks south of Fulton on the Hempstead county side had reached paved Highway 67—but the water was being kept back by a temporary levee thrown up along the highway by WPA emergency crews and the State Highway Department.

County Red Cross Chairman Wayne H. England announced that two Red Cross offices had been established, one at Hope, and the other at Fulton.

Flood refugees are being given food, shelter and medical attention. The State Department of Health sent representatives to Fulton Thursday where refugees were being given free medical attention and were being vaccinated against typhoid fever. The medical work was being directed by Comer Jones of Arkadelphia and Dr. Grace, assisted by Dr. J. G. Martindale, county health officer.

Orders for food were being issued at both Fulton and Hope. Chairman England said approximately 250 families, 80 per cent of which are negroes, were being taken care of. Each mercantile firm at Fulton had representatives at Red Cross headquarters to identify persons entering applications for supplies.

Refugees also were being identified as they applied for assistance at the Hope office, in charge of Mrs. Kline Snyder and Miss Mary Louise Keith. Miss Marguerite Simms, national Red Cross representative, was directing relief activities at Fulton, assisted by representatives of the State Department of Health.

All Rivers Falling

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — The Little Rock weather bureau Thursday reported falling stages on the Arkansas, White and Ouachita rivers at all except a few stations in the extreme lower reaches of the streams.

The report indicated a general easing of the state's flood situation. Red river, in the southwestern corner of the state, rose 2 feet during the past 24 hours to reach a stage of 36.4 at Fulton Thursday, 11.4 feet above flood stage.

The river there Wednesday reached a peak of 36.5 but dropped slightly following a levee break at Garland City.

The flattened crest of the Arkansas river passed Pine Bluff during the night. South of Pine Bluff plantation levees were sandbagged in low spots but engineers said they anticipated no further serious trouble.

Around the Town

WHEN The Star went down the Fulton levee Tuesday afternoon to make pictures of the WPA workers throwing up an extra dirt wall on top of the main levee the men stopped shoveling to pose for the picture.

"The water was inches away. 'Keep shoveling,' we said, 'this has got to look like you're working.'"

"Hell," replied a wag, "they wouldn't believe it now."

They travel single-file up and down the levee when fighting a flood. Traffic is pretty heavy. When the camera came along and brushed one tried worker he barked: "Everything else has gone by—now what's that?"

One old negro mammy down Fulton-way is notoriously blind—can't see more'n 10 feet.

But she had to see the flood. So they led her out to the bank and turned her face to the river.

El Dorado, Mena Ministers Speak on Thursday Night

To Address Bible Conference at First Baptist Church

IS CLOSING FRIDAY

Rev. J. F. Queen to Deliver Final Message Friday Night

Dr. Charles W. Daniel of El Dorado and Dr. L. D. Summers of Mena will be featured speakers at the Thursday night session of the Bible and Stewardship Conference at First Baptist church.

The conference will close at noon Friday with a doctrinal sermon by the Rev. J. F. Queen of Hot Springs.

Dr. Charles W. Daniel has been delivering lectures on the Epistle of James every morning during the conference. His lectures have created keen interest and enthusiasm.

Dr. L. D. Summers has been widely known throughout the state, and more recently throughout the nation, for his denunciation of the "gumbo racket" in Hot Springs and "communist teachings and practices" of Commonwealth College near Mena. He has been described as "the most despised preacher in Arkansas." The night session will open with a devotional at 7 o'clock. Dr. C. W. Daniel will speak at 7:30, and Dr. L. D. Summers at 8:15. The public is cordially invited to attend all sessions of the Conference.

Wednesday night's session was opened with a devotional by the Rev. Frank W. Patterson, pastor of First Baptist church of Nashville, Ark.

In his devotional the Rev. Mr. Patterson said:

"In due time Christ died for the ungodly.

"We see here the time when he died, the fact that he died, and the reason why he died.

"The manner of his death was ignominious and shameful, and they led him away and crucified him. There were other times that efforts had been made to slay Jesus. At one time the people of Nazareth sought to cast him over a precipice. But his death on the cross was the lowest that could be imagined. 'Cursed is everyone that hangeth on a tree.'

"The reason for his crucifixion was our sins. A man once dreamed that he saw Jesus lying on the cross which had been stretched out on the ground and the human was uplifted to drive nails through his hands. He rushed forward to stop the fall of the hammer and was shocked to see that it was he himself who was driving the nails. The dream contained an element of truth, for it was your sins and mine, and the rejection of God's love that caused the nails to be driven. Our sins were contemplated in this death. 'God commendeth his own love toward us in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us.' God tore out his own heart and sent it in flesh to live and die for us that we might be saved."

Revoke Charter of Pennsylvania AFL

Green Acts Because of Refusal to Expel CIO Units There

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President William Green of the A. F. of L. revoked the charter of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor Wednesday night in an effort to thwart certain labor leaders who are "ambitious for political power."

Green left no doubt that he considered John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chief, to be one of the most "ambitious" leaders. The state federation's charter was taken away because its officers refused to drop C. I. O. unions from its roster.

"This action," said Green, "will serve notice that the policies of the 400,000 loyal members of the American Federation of Labor unions in Pennsylvania cannot be dictated by self-constituted labor leaders not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, nor can their votes be delivered by such leaders, ambitious for political power."

The state Federation of Labor is dominated by C. I. O. unions.

And So Europe Has Another Dictator

RUMANIA'S King Carol, who can turn more shades than the most versatile chameleon, has set himself up, finally, in a dictatorship as tight as any in Europe, and the outcome of his step promises to be more interesting to watch than the usual run of totalitarian strides—if it isn't more tragic.

To understand Carol's doubtful position it will help to go back a few years and review the background.

EARLY in the days when oil was first found to have a value and effect upon the relationships of nations, Rumania was found to be rich in that natural resource, and several powers, including the United States, fought wholeheartedly if not too sportingly over it. Rumanian government officials were corrupted enthusiastically, right and left.

By 1918 the Germans had invaded part of Rumania and the government moved to Jessy. Carol was an officer in the army and led his retreating troops out the country's back door. The troops, history tells us, were laden more heavily with champagne than arms.

In this inverse defense of his country, Carol met zestful Zizi Lambrino and married her, over the protests of Queen Marie who was so upset she sailed for America to arrange for a national loan. This marriage lasted until Carol met Princess Helena, daughter of the King of Greece. The first marriage was annulled and Carol married Helena.

Eighteen months later Carol met Magda Lupescu, the wife of a Rumanian officer, and was off again. Magda divorced her husband and when Queen Marie sent Carol to London to get him out of this new entanglement, he skipped off to Milan and was joined by Magda.

Then King Ferdinand died and when Carol did not return, his 6-year-old son ascended the throne under a regency. But there was still oil in Rumania, the report goes, so Carol was financed, returned and nudged his son off the throne. The rest is more modern.

Lupescu followed Carol back and reportedly was the power behind the throne, but that didn't work so well. Half Jewess, Magda is hated by the Jews, feared by the Gentiles and resented by the army.

With the country's economic structure in bad shape, Carol backed Goga as his premier. Goga started a pogrom against the Jews. They controlled 80 per cent of the nation's industry and simply quit work. All industry and business stopped. France, Czechoslovakia and Russia looked askance at the new government. Goga was a clay pigeon who had to go, and Carol now took the last step into a dictatorship.

THIS country is on the verge of economic disaster, his army hates his girl friend, his international friendships are estranged, his political parties are eyeing each other's throats and Carol's.

What happens can't help being interesting—if it isn't tragic.

Rules Nicknames Out

PROBABLY no decision that retired Supreme Court Justice Willis Van Devanter ever made during his long judicial career will be more favorably received than one he delivered from the New York federal bench the other day—that a nickname should have no bearing on the reputation of the person attached.

How many friends do you have whose nicknames have clung from an unabashed boyhood through an often-embarassed middle life? Being called "Stinky" over that stolen perfume episode didn't matter much in grade school. And "Snake," applied because of a peculiar elusive talent on a football field was all right in college. But they do sound funny out in company without benefit of background.

Justice Van Devanter, who may logically have had a nickname or two of his own in younger days, might have gone still further and started a move to officially abolish nicknames that have survived less complicated ages.

Doctors Find That "Heart Failure" Is Due to Dozen Different Ailments

(No. 458)

When the heart fails to get enough blood out every minute to take care of the needs of various portions of the body for oxygen and for nutrition, the results are serious. Doctors used to write "heart failure" or "heart disease" on death certificates to indicate that the main disturbance was the fact that the heart had stopped.

Today "heart failure" is no longer considered a satisfactory diagnosis. We know that there are so many different conditions that can affect the heart and which can cause it difficulty in its ability to carry on its work that the scientific pathologists will want to know exactly which of those conditions was concerned.

For instance, one of the valves of the heart may be so damaged by the growth of vegetations, by inflammation or by infection that it will permit the blood to leak backward after the blood has flown out. In other cases the opening in the valve may be so greatly narrowed that the heart cannot force out an adequate amount of blood with each pumping movement. Under either of these circumstances the heart is failing in its work.

In addition to attacking the valves of the heart, an infection, a poison or excessive work may damage the muscle of this organ. If the muscle is

For Love of Polly

By RACHEL MACK
Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CAPT OF CHARACTERS POLLY (CHITTE) is heroine stranded in London when war breaks out.

JERRY (WHITFIELD), hero of the Yankee who sees her through.

CARROLL BANKS, privateer captain.

Yesterday Jerry and Polly aboard the Clitte smuggling ship and plans to rescue her from him now.

CHAPTER XX

JERRY and Cabell Banks went to the bow where the man with two names and two ways of speaking stood holding the wheel, a massive man with an insolent face and shifting eyes. The bright scarlet about his head gave a Latin cast to his crafty, handsome features, so that you thought of a pirate of the Mediterranean Sea. Yet he was not entirely Latin either. There was in him the stubborn cruel look of the Anglo-Saxon who worships brute force. A half-breed man, carrying in his veins the worst traits of two races.

Jerry asked, "Are you your only passengers?"

Clitte's eyes slid around, then focused again on a curve in the French shore line. "No." He had read in Jerry's face some knowledge.

"Who else besides us?"

"An old dame. . . French," he added.

Jerry and Cabell exchanged swift glances. They were acting without plan. Step by step must do it. "We saw her at the cabin port," Banks stated. "It may surprise you to know that she's not French and not at all old. . . Or does it?"

Jerry started to speak in the silence, but Banks lifted a warning eyebrow. Jerry's impetuous handling of the situation might be fatal. "No doubt this news surprises you, Monsieur Clitte," Cabell repeated in French. "We have spoken with the lady. She tells us she is American, the same as ourselves. She has asked us to see her ashore."

"She does?" said Clitte in French. His hand started to shift from the wheel to his belt, where a pistol hung, then desisted. His sliding eyes had seen their pistols, drooping from their hands with a sort of tender carelessness. Not one of his own men was within hail.

Jerry's nerves snapped. He could not endure this French patter that left him in ignorance of what went on. He said to Clitte, "You've locked her in!"

"Absentmindedly, no doubt," murmured Cabell Banks. He believed that much more could be done with a man who has not lost face. He watched Clitte intently and saw his method almost work.

Then came defiance. "What if I have? It's my ship."

Two pistols were raised a few inches and held rigid. "The key to the cabin!" Cabell requested. "Give it to me and I'll go unlock the door. You'll need to stay at the wheel. My friend here will stay with you to keep you from being lonely."

JEAN CLITTE, sometimes known as John McGean, took from around his neck an iron key that hung on a chain and tossed it to Cabell Banks. He appeared not to notice that Jerry Whitfield's pistol still covered him as Banks moved quickly off. The exigencies of a smuggler's life had no doubt taught him that dangerous games must be played quietly. He would wait. . .

Down in the cabin Polly heard a key grate in the lock. She hoped it would be Jerry and feared it would be Clitte. Her quick wits told her to be thankful for this compromise. The wiry, homely young man from Boston was bowing to her in his polished, impersonal way.

"Put on your wig, Miss Chelsey," he said, quite like a parent telling a child to do his bid. "Then follow me on deck."

"Wait till I pick up the dog. Are you taking me to Jerry, Mr. Banks?"

Cabell considered a moment. "Well, no, Miss Chelsey. He's at the wheel, standing his trick, you might say, with our brave skipper. You come with me to the rope ladder. I want you to be the first to leave the lugger. . . Would you mind bending your pretty back and looking a little more ancient? . . . That's it! Thank you. Lean on your stick very hard now and follow me."

Jerry, meanwhile, was taking a more direct course with Clitte than Cabell Banks would have advised. Strategy was as unnatural with him as was diplomacy. He did not find it in his nature to play chess for Polly with this rascal.

He said, "Miss Chelsey's my sweetheart and we're going to be married. I'll kill anybody that makes a move to harm her."

Clitte did not reply. He was skillfully bringing the lugger in to a small, desolate-looking harbor where several fishing boats rode at anchor and a few shacks lined the shore. To leeward of the lugger a large sloop of war could be seen passing the little harbor. He had bent it. He had, in fact, dodged through a sail-infested Channel all night, and with moreadroitness than anybody but a smuggler could appreciate. He desired nothing so much now as a long drink of liquor and a chance to get his cargo ashore.

Having drawn these conclusions, the rascal, who was two people, shrugged his shoulders and said to Jerry Whitfield, "You can take the woman ashore. I've got troubles enough. I figured she was a rag-tag Bourbon."

SAILS came down and the anchor was dropped. Clitte gave orders for the long boat to be lowered away with his three passengers, the dog and the trunk in it. There was a great deal of showy politeness on both sides, though the New Englanders' eyes were watchful, and Jerry and Cabell still held their pistols caressingly.

Even when shore was reached and the dory had gone back to the ship there was no relaxing. The village, like Corly on the other side, had the unwholesome air of furtive life and lawlessness. Jerry said, "We'd best get away from here before Clitte comes ashore and drinks a lot of cognac. He'll think he's Napoleon, come sundown."

Cabell, who spoke French almost as easily as he spoke English, engaged a rough cart to carry them to Calais, and when they had gained the cobbled streets of that ancient and legitimate port city they felt a vast relief. They were "safe in France" at last. They were in a country that, like America, was at war with the English.

The cart driver was surprised, when he turned around, to find that the subdued old lady he had carried had become a laughing young woman with cropped brown curls. He was so intrigued and puzzled that he stopped his cart, to stare.

Polly said to Cabell, "I want to present him with this wig. Make a proper speech for me, please." At which Cabell gravely made the presentation and declared in Parisian French:

"From our Little Grandmother to yours, Monsieur, with the gratitude of three wayfarers hearts!"

They went to an hotel then, and Polly put on her prettiest dress for the dinner of celebration that Cabell Banks had ordered for them in the dining room which he taught them to call the salle a manger.

Jerry allowed Polly but one glass of wine, saying a New England granny who has just regained her youth must be careful. But Polly needed no stimulant for her emotions. Jerry's ardent eyes caressed and wooed her even while his sturdy gallantry protected her. In this oasis where bliss and safety met, the lovers and their friend laughed at yesterday and talked of tomorrow, not knowing that the greatest danger lay ahead.

RAISING A FAMILY

By Olive Roberts Barton

Mother Often Is Intuitive Psychologist

In a contented peaceful house, where even the parents manage their little corporation kindly and firmly, but not too firmly, of course, there is no great need to know all about psychology.

Sometimes I wish the word had never been invented, because it has given so many mothers an inferiority complex. There I go, using the very term I would repudiate. But it fills the bill very well, at that.

I shall try my best to avoid pedantry and technical terms, for I believe a private page is one thing and Johnnie tearing the house to pieces is another. At best the mother can get only a very general idea of reasons for conduct. Yet, the more we know, the less we grope for answers. Once in awhile some little light may break.

When a child is a real problem and continues to behave under a low average, then I should see a psychiatrist about him, if possible. I have faith in the professional.

Procedure Is Simple

Actually mothers are using more of the rules than they think. They have a way of seeking causes of trouble without the benefit of scientific dogma. It all comes down to common sense anyway. Your behavior-doctor won't advise peculiar or complicated treatment, but the homely little devices that are so simple you will wonder why you didn't think of it in the first place.

I often advise parents to read informative literature on child behavior, however, because it is usually of the greatest interest. When you can find an article or book that tells you more about the bodies of your children, it is intensely absorbing, is it not? And so it is with truth on behavior.

Be Critical on Theory

The one thing that I should like to warn against, however, is jumping to conclusions when you read. Be adaptable and change your methods here and there when you see a light, but avoid turning into one of the too-theoretical "modern" mothers, as you may find yourself in a tangle. Remember, a little knowledge can be a dangerous thing.

Most family life is spontaneous. This is the way it should be. No two days are exactly alike, and no two children are alike.

There cannot be a recipe for every event, but there can be a consistent atmosphere of cheerfulness under the seriousness of play and work. Wholehearted family life is more important than a misinterpreted and discouraging psychology.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give longer life and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

MRS. SID HENRY TELEPHONE 321

If you are singing for a lofty work, if ambitions dominate your mind, just watch yourself, and see you do not shrink. The common little ways of being kind. If you are dreaming of a future goal when crowned with glory, men shall own your power. Be careful that you let no struggling soul go by unaided in the present hour. If you would help to make the wrong things right, begin at home! There lies a lifetime toil. Weed out your garden, fair for all men's sight. Before you try to till another's soil. —Selected.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Forster announce the arrival of a little son, Richard Ross III, Wednesday, February 23, at Julia Chester hospital.

A dance is announced for the Country club Thursday evening, beginning at 9 o'clock.

The eight house guests of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Henry, including Mrs. J. M. Ligon, Mrs. J. W. Ligon, Mrs. Faber Hicks, Mrs. J. L. McAllister, Mrs. H. B. Ingram, Mrs. Frank E.

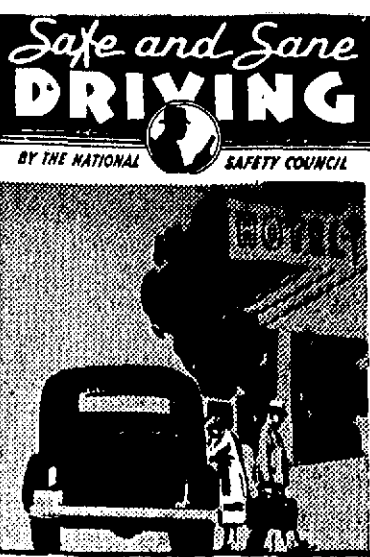

Robins, Mrs. George F. Hartje and Miss Lee Reynolds, all of Conway, have been the center of the week's social activities. On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Henry entertained for their pleasure with ten tables of bridge at her home on North Elm street. The card rooms were beautifully decorated with cut flowers, and the bridge accessories were in the George Washington motif. Table prizes of lovely flowers were given for high score, and the first prize went to Mrs. E. O. Wingfield, and the cut prize to Mrs. Lloyd Spencer. The honorees were presented with a dainty gift of remembrance. Following the game, a most tempting salad course was served. On Tuesday evening, they were dinner guests of Mrs. N. W. Denty at Hotel Barlow. Spring was the keynote of the decorations and place cards marking covers for 16. Following the dinner, Mrs. E. M. McWilliams entertained at bridge at her home on East Third street. On Wednesday afternoon, they were the inspiration for an attractive bridge party at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Spencer, Edgewood avenue. Mrs. Max Cox was their hostess at a most tempting dinner-bridge at her home on South Elm street. On Thursday, they were the honorees at a beautiful planned luncheon at the home of Mrs. Terrell Cornelius on South Pine street.

The regular evening meeting of the Friday Music club has been postponed until Friday evening, March 4, at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. J. C. Carlton, East Third street.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Jones announce the arrival of a little son, Raymond Frederick, Tuesday, February 22, at Julia Chester hospital.

After an extended visit with Mrs. W. O. Shipley and the Shipley's in Magnolia, Miss Fannie Shipley left Wednesday for a Mardi Gras visit in New Orleans, before returning to her home in Savannah, Ga.

It is said that bees live longer in the winter than in the summer, because they do not have to work so hard then. During the wintry weather of the American Revolution, soldiers often deserted during harvest time and returned when spring plowing was done.

Fatigue at the Wheel
Did your friend boast about how many hundred miles he drove each day during his vacation? He was at the wheel not only all day long, but sometimes well into the night?

He was lucky to get home alive. Long hours at the wheel are one of the common causes of automobile accidents. You might tell him that drowsiness—actually falling asleep while driving—accounts for some 20,000 serious accidents every year.

Managers of large motor vehicle fleets, whose trucks make regular long hauls across country, are careful to limit the hours their drivers may work. Fatigue and the monotony of driving often make sleep almost irresistible.

If you feel the slightest drowsiness while driving, do not ignore the warning. Either let someone else drive, or take steps to rouse yourself to alertness again. Get out and run up and down the road. Stop for a cup of coffee. Even pull to the roadside and take a little nap.

And on that vacation, or any long trip with continuous driving, plan to drive moderate distances only; and get your regular sleep—plenty of it—every night.

STORIES IN STAMPS

BRITAIN'S OUTPOST IN CHINA

FACED with the ever-spreading crisis of the Chinese war, Great Britain trains her guns on the Hong Kong harbor these days, determined to maintain her 100-year control of this patch of England in the Orient.

It was through the port of Hong Kong, Japanese recently charged, that ammunition supplies were flowing to the Chinese. This Britain denied. Later, Japanese planes were reported to have attacked the railroad connecting Canton and Hong Kong.

So now the British Empire is digging trenches at Hong Kong and solidifying her fortifications. Outpost of the empire, this crown colony is scarcely larger than New York City in area, but it is one of the empire's most important possessions.

The colony stands at a point where the mouths of several rivers draining China enter the sea and in turn it serves the vast interior of China as a thriving trade center and strategic port. The population is nearly 1,000,000, mostly Chinese.

Victoria is the center of this, a city with a five-mile waterfront. Administered by a British governor, Hong Kong has its own postage. One stamp is shown here.

Use the Old Noodle for Meatless Menus

(From Alexandria Room, New York)
A brilliant Lenten feast of fresh shrimp, a la Newburg in a ring of cheese noodles. The red and green garnish of broiled tomatoes with fresh asparagus makes a complete luncheon in itself.

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

Lenten abstinence is a personal matter. But food is of almost public interest. Meatless days from now until the day of the Easter bonnet need not be trails on the palate and the cook. To prove the point, try a brilliant combination of noodles, cheese and shrimp with tomatoes and fresh asparagus — all ingredients being canonically correct.

Noodle Cheese Ring (Serves 6)

Two cups boiled noodles, 1/2 cup melted butter, 2 beaten eggs, 1 cup grated sharp cheese, 3/4 cup milk, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1/4 teaspoon finely grated onion. Salt to taste. Mix above ingredients together, being sure that the mixture is well seasoned. Butter a one-quart ring mold and fill with noodle mixture. Place in pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until done (about 45 minutes). Loosen noodle ring before turning out. Fresh Shrimp a la Newburg

Three-fourths quart cooked and cleaned whole fresh shrimp (or quick-frozen shrimp) sprinkled with 1 teaspoon onion juice, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, salt, pepper.

Melt 3/4 cup butter in pan. Add seasoned shrimp and saute. Remove shrimp and sprinkle with 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice.

Sauce One-half cup butter (from sauteed shrimp), 3/4 cup flour, 1/2 cup concentrated shrimp stock, 1 cup light cream, 1 1/2 cups milk, 2 egg yolks, 1/4 cup sherry.

Melt butter. Add flour and cook well. Heat together the shrimp stock, the cream and the milk, and then add these to the first two, blending all well together. Cook for 10 minutes. Remove from stove. Add egg yolks, slightly beaten, and sherry. Add sauteed shrimp and more seasoning as desired.

Service Place noodle ring in center of large platter. Fill the center of the ring with shrimp a la Newburg, allowing some to run over two sides, as in the photograph. At each end of the platter place three grilled tomato halves. On top of each tomato place three small cooked asparagus tips, cut the same length as the width of the tomato. Garnish the platter with fresh water-cress.

With the County Agent

Clifford L. Smith

This year, producers of spring lambs will be more dependent upon finish for top prices than during the past two years. This is due to the large volume of finished animals that will be on the market when the Arkansas crop is sold.

In order to get well-finished lambs, liberal use should be made of the plentiful supplies of feed on hand. Generally, an abundant grazing period will give a fair finish, but with the plentiful feed supplies emphasis should be given immediately to grain feeding and the use of legume hay. Grain and legume hay fed to the ewes will insure a heavy milk flow during the early growth period of the lambs, says M. W. Muldrow, Extension animal husbandman, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

It would also be advisable, Mr. Muldrow said to feed to the lambs in creeps. This should be begun at once so the lambs will have learned to eat before they are turned to grass. Even with good grazing, this creep feeding should be continued. It will result in a larger number of lambs obtaining a finish high enough to grade "good" and "choice."

Guernsey

The Guernsey P. T. A. met last Tuesday night, February 15, with a record attendance and enjoyed one of the best programs of the year, as follows:

Meeting called to order by the President, Mrs. Chas. Wylie. Program read by the Secretary, Miss Lillie B. Ducker. "America" sung by audience. Scripture reading given by Miss Nellie Hays. Prayer given by Mrs. Clarence Tyler. Minutes of last regular monthly meeting read by the secretary. Old and new business discussed by members of the club. Introduction of chief speaker of the evening, made by the principal, Hugh Bristow. Talk, "Building Character" by J. L. Liebong, principal of Fulton schools. Discussion, "What the P. T. A. Means to the Youth of Arkansas," by James Pilkinton, a faculty member of the Hope High School. Talk, "Why Our Schools Must Include Physical Education in Their Program," by Jimmie Jones, principal of Hope High School. Announcements by Mr. Bristow. Dismissal by Miss Tucked.

At the next regular meeting of the organization, the program committee plans to invite such distinguished speakers as A. B. Wetherington, superintendent of the Blevins schools, R. E. Jackson, head of the agricultural department of Hope High School, to take part in the program. And it is hoped that the Hope Quartet can be with us at that time.

Honor Roll The following 17 students of the Guernsey High School department made the coveted honor roll during the sixth month of work, having made "B" or better as an average in all their work:

Twelfth grade—Norma Pittman, Vernie Lou Edwards, Evelyn Boyse, Francis Jarvis, Sam Hughson. Eleventh grade—Freida Boyd, Faye

Bodcaw Is Favorite to Win Tournament

Badgers Have Record of 33 Victories Against Eight Losses

HOPE, Ark.—The Bodcaw Badgers as well as juniors started the week here Monday and Tuesday with grueling work-outs in preparation for the county and district tournaments respectively.

Although the Badgers ranks were thinned Monday afternoon with Butler on the bench with a cold and Badger absent on business, both men will be in shape to contest their rights to the county championship here Friday and Saturday.

The Badgers are pre-tournament favorites for the county title, holding the championship for the two preceding years, and a record of 33 victories and only 3 losses this season. The Badgers have won three invitation tournaments at Eureka, Prescott and Willisville this season.

Coach H. H. May said that his juniors boys would enter the junior division of District 10 tournament at Snackover Saturday. The team decided to enter the district meet when they won the county tournament here last Saturday night.

Players booked to make the trip to Snackover Saturday are: Howard Hairston, J. P. Martin, Buck Goodwin, Troy Russell, J. C. Downs, Lindell Fuller, and Dinver Lee Fuller.

Former Coach, Austin Caudle will probably accompany the team on the trip to Snackover as Coach May will be unable to go because the senior division of the county tournament will be here at that time.

Although the junior team is not as strong as it was last year, he boys have fair hopes of winning the district championship.

It is to be hoped that the juniors will have better luck this year than last as they did not arrive in time for their first game, due to motor trouble, and were only allowed to play for consolation title winning that place.

The Bodcaw B team won a spectacular game from the Willisville B team here Wednesday afternoon. An extra period of play was used.

The Bodcaw boys started the scoring but were closely trailed by the Willisville boys. Bodcaw led 9-7 in the first half.

The Bodcaw team led in the last half until near the end of the last quarter when the Willisville boys whipped in some fast ones to tie the score at 19-19. Dorman of Bodcaw failed in an attempt to score a free shot after the time was up.

In a three minute extra period Caudle, N. Butler and Hering of Bodcaw all found the basket for baggers while Willisville scored only 1 point, giving Bodcaw the victory at 21-26.

N. Butler was high point man with 12 points for Bodcaw and Hering was Willisville's high man with 7 points. Captain W. N. Bailey of the Bodcaw Badgers called the game.

Fulton Beats Flood

continued protecting the town. T. J. Logan, U. S. river observer here, said the stage Thursday morning was 36.4, a decline of one-tenth since midnight. Two levee breaks west of here at Index were aiding Fulton's situation. The stage at Index dropped seven-tenths of a foot, Logan said.

"We've got it whipped," he said, predicting that a marked fall would be recorded here by nightfall, despite the Shreveport weather bureau's forecast of 33 to 40 feet by Friday.

Another levee went out about 20 miles south of here near Garland City Thursday, following a break there about midnight. The breaks flooded farmlands, but Lew Person, planter told the Associated Press that the gaps had aided the situation a Garland City.

"Both the breaks were on the Lafayette county side," Person said. "They took some of the pressure off of Garland, which is in no danger. All of the families in the flooded section across the river got out all right."

509 Refugees at Fulton

At Fulton, out-of-town observers marveled at the lack of concern shown by Fulton residents. The town's main street runs parallel with the river and only 50 yards from the sandbag dike. Not more than a score of Fulton residents left the city. On the other hand at least 500 refugees from surrounding areas flocked into Fulton.

A checker game went on in a store with a dozen watching it. The dike gave way, that store would be inundated to a depth of five feet. Three storekeepers said they had not walked the 50 yards to the levee to have a look at the river.

"These people have lived on the river all their life and they don't fear it," said Ernest Cox, storekeeper. "They never will believe its coming into Fulton until it does. Some of those over in the lowlands have refused to leave their partially submerged houses on account of looters. We've had a few reports of looters going into evacuated places and taking the furniture, livestock and stored corn and hay."

Mrs. I. E. Odom, postmistress, said "I wanted to put my furniture up on scaffolds but everyone laughed at me. Everyone else is more worried about Fulton than we are here."

Telephone calls from all over the United States poured in, relatives and friends in other states calling to determine if Fulton residents were washed away.

The office of Wayne England at Hope, county Red Cross chairman, said 300 refugees would be taken care of at Fulton. The whites will be housed in vacant buildings and the negroes in negro churches. But few refugees had gone to Hope, most of them seemingly being content to remain here and watch or participate in the levee fight.

An abandoned Fulton hotel, once a social gathering place in southwest Arkansas, was being used to house about 80 flood victims. Approximately 40 negroes were in a church. The others were being accommodated in Fulton's homes.

District 10 Cage Tourney to Open

Bobcats Meet Stamps in Fourth Game Thursday Night at Lewisville

LEWISVILLE, Ark.—The annual District 10 boys' basketball tournament will get underway here at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the new Lewisville gymnasium. Four games will be played during the first night's rounds.

Play will be resumed Friday and will continue until Saturday night when the final games will be played.

Dizzy Dean Ends Salary Dispute

Cardinal Pitcher Signs for Reported Sum of $17,500

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean ended his annual salary squabble with the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday by signing a contract for the 1938 season.

"Ole Diz" motored here from his Bradenton, Fla., winter home, shook hands with Branch Rickey, vice president and general manager of the club, went into a hotel room huddled with the boss and signed on the dotted line all within two and a half hours.

Neither Dean nor Rickey would disclose the salary figure but reports soon were circulated that Dizzy agreed to pitch this year for about $17,500. He previously said he would demand $20,000. He received about $27,000 last year.

The big moundsman returned the first contract the Cards sent him, saying he expected to take a salary reduction but was not in the mood for a slash of "more than $10,000." Rickey didn't say at the time how much he had offered Dean but the figure was reported to be around $15,000.

All smiles, Dizzy emerged from the conference declaring he was mighty pleased and would report for spring training at the Cards' St. Petersburg camp March 2. His only comment about the salary arrangement was "it suits me."

Formosa Is Bombed
TOKIO, Japan.—(AP)—The Japanese empire suffered the first air raid in its history Wednesday as Chinese warplanes bombed the island of Formosa and inflicted many casualties.

The Formosa government reported eight persons killed and 29 injured in attacks on Taihoku, capital near the northern tip of the island and Shenchiku City, on the western coast.

Formosa lies approximately 120 miles east of the southeastern coast of China. It was ceded to Japan by China in 1895 as a result of the Chinese-Japanese war of 1894-95 and most of its 5,500,000 inhabitants are racially Chinese.

Dispatches from Hankow variously said that 70 or 36 Russian-made planes flown by pilots of undisclosed nationality conducted the attacks from a base of China's southeast coast. Chinese reports said 40 Japanese airplanes, two hangars and a gasoline storage plant were destroyed at the Taihoku air base and heavy damage inflicted on strategic points on the western shore of Formosa. They said the raiders returned unscathed and their attack probably was a "forerunner of similar raids to come."

Previous reports have said that a "foreign legion of the air" comprising American, Russian, British and French volunteers was flying for the Chinese.

Louis Scores K.O. Over Nathan Mann

Connecticut Battler Goes Out in Third Round of Fight

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York.—(AP)—Joe Louis, looking like the old brown bomber himself, dropped out of the fistie clouds Wednesday night with a detonation that rocked the rafters of the old battle-pit and flattened burly Nathan Mann, New Haven (Conn.) challenger for the world heavyweight championship, in less than eight minutes.

Back to the pugilistic wars after a layoff of six months, Louis rallied from a shaky start to cut Mann down and knock him out in the third round of a 15-round match before a near-after Mann had taken a count of nine in the second round, been saved by the referee, and then battered to the floor three times in the abbreviated final capacity Garden crowd.

The end came in 1:56 of the third chapter. Mann, looking like he had been put through a meat-chopper, took the final count in one corner of the ring, resting on one knee but otherwise sound, punch-drunk that he didn't even appear to hear Referee Arthur Donovan's final "ten."

The champion put an abrupt and convincing end to the match, with a high-explosive brand of punching power, after being surprised and actually hurt by his challenger's brisk early bid.

A hard right to the chin that shook Louis, in the second round, and sent him back to the ropes, blinking and bewildered, appeared to touch off the fireworks. It was one of several rapid blows with which Mann connected during the first round and a half, while Louis looked the situation over. It aroused the champion to such an extent that his counter-blast quickly had the ambitious Connecticut entry on the floor.

All persons interested in poultry and livestock is invited to witness the showing of the picture. The film was shown at Rosston Monday night and at Patmos Wednesday night.

El Dorado, Mena

Quachita Association of Baptists, from the text. "For we preach not ourselves, but Jesus Christ the Lord, and ourselves are servants for Jesus' sake." He pointed out that Jesus is the Saviour of the world, the only saviour and the all sufficient Saviour. He is sufficient to care for the sins committed before salvation, said Mr. Robertson, "and also the sins committed after salvation. If he were not able to care for sins committed after salvation we would need more than one Saviour. A man cannot save himself. Our eternal destiny is not determined by what we do or what we do not do but by our relation to Jesus Christ and that is determined by our faith."

"When you come to the observance of the Lord's Supper you should dis- tinguish the Lord's body, not your father or mother, brother or sister, friend or relative—only the sacrifice of Christ on the cross for our sins. This truth is sustained by Paul's statement that we eat and drink condemnation unto ourselves if we discern not the Lord's death until he comes."

"We were not baptized into Christ, according to Paul's statement in the sixth chapter of Romans but we were buried with him in baptism. We cannot be buried with him unless we are already with him—saved by having Christ with us and in our hearts."

The Rev. E. C. Brown, pastor of First Baptist church of Benton spoke on the "Meaning of Stewardship." He said in part:

"Christian stewardship is more than

Traders Buy for the Spring Boom

Speculative Markets Indicate Belief in Spring Upturn

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Wall Street trading revived Wednesday with a broad buying sweep in stocks, bonds and commodities. Traders seemed to take their cues mainly from a rise in foreign markets based on belief England's move for negotiations with Italy had improved immediate peace prospects.

However, aviation, copper, steel and the question of Christian giving. We must get down to foundations. We are interested with the management of affairs which are no our own. We are trustees of the manifold riches of God. Responsibility is implied in stewardship—the responsibility to administer for another. If we appropriate our trust for our own use we are unfaithful and dishonest. Will a man rob God?

"We are free to administer as we will. But there is a day of accountability. Missions is connected with stewardship. We are responsible for carrying the message to countries where people do not know Christ. Japan, for instance, has less than one per cent of its population Christian. No wonder that Japan is militaristic!"

"In our own country, young men are strapped in the electric chair as they thought run through their mind. 'Why was I not told the gospel of salvation from sin before I committed my crime?' We should be telling boys and girls everywhere the way of life through Christ Jesus."

"The pivot point of this matter of stewardship is a use of money. God does not expect lost men to be good stewards, but he does expect his children to help him gather the harvest before the rains come and the golden grain is beaten to the ground and destroyed. Be honorable sons—stewards of the gospel. 'Say not ye, there are yet four months, and then cometh the harvest? Behold, I say unto you, lift up your eyes and look on the fields, that they are white already unto harvest.'" other so-called "war" shares were in the forefront of the upswing here as the world arms race, a potent force in guiding speculation in recent months, apparently had been accelerated with France planning to increase expenditures.

Hopes for a spring business upturn

In this country, following the steep decline in production since last summer, gave impetus to the buying movement, brokers said. Actually, they said, little change has appeared on the surface but speculative markets usually are inclined to anticipate business turns.
